National Career Service And
Model Career Center At University

Dr. Babasaheb Ambedkar Marathwada University has a Model Career Center under national career service in National Institute of Electronics and Information Technology, NIELIT, in the premises of University.

To enable the people of India, to provided by central government take their destiny in to their own hands and be competitive in the global arena, the Government of India has launched three important initiatives. Make in India, which will bring employment opportunities. Skill India which will bring to the force skilled manpower and Digital India which will bring the power of the Internet and technology to the vast majority.

Now, National Career Service (NCS) is where it all comes together. Bridging the gap between those who need jobs and those who want to hire them, between people seeking career guidance and training and those who can provide the counselling and training. Bringing job seekers, employers, counselors, trainers and placement organizations together on one platform by offering convergence of information that enlightens minds and empowers people.

National Career Service aims at reaching out to people across the county, in particular the youth, through a well-designed structure that comprises an ICT – based portal, a country wide set-up of career centers, a multilingual call center, and a network of career counsellors. The chain of common service centers across the country is another important channel through which NCS can reach far and wide.
